this book contains 15 papers which were presented by specialists from europe and egypt at two conferences held at ain shams university egypt in 2014 and 2015 eight of the articles deal with the history of late antique egypt in its manifold aspects from monasticism and coptic manuscripts to the organization of the arab conquest the other seven contributions provide new writings from that historical period published here for the first time or give new readings of texts earlier known as inscriptions papyri and ostraca and offer a close up look at the historical setting outlined in the first part of this book

most commentators look at the issue of immigration from the viewpoint of immediate politics in doing so they focus on only a piece of the issue and lose touch with the larger picture now thomas sowell offers a sweeping historical and global look at a large number of migrations over a long period of time migrations and cultures shows the persistence of cultural traits in particular racial and ethnic groups and the role these groups relocations play in redistributing skills knowledge and other forms of human capital answers the question what are the effects of disseminating the patterns of the particular set of skills attitudes and lifestyles each ethnic group has carried forth both for the immigrants and for the host countries in social as well as economic terms the worsening environmental crisis has become a serious threat to mankind the search for a solution to this crisis must begin by understanding its causes taking an eco socialist perspective the ecological crisis and the logic of capital explores the logic of capitalism as a fundamental cause of today s environmental crisis in particular the thirst for profit and the capitalist mode of production by demonstrating the inherent antagonism between capital and ecology this book argues that proposals to resolve the crisis within the capitalist system are utopian that proposed remedies relying on scientific progress alternative energies low carbon technologies or the introduction of ecological ethics and new attitudes toward nature into market mechanisms are doomed to failure without a radical overhaul of the principles that govern capitalism academic and practitioner journals in fields from electronics to business to language studies as well as the popular press have for over a decade been proclaiming the arrival of the computer revolution and making far reaching claims about the impact of computers on modern western culture implicit in many arguments about the revolutionary power of computers is the assumption that communication language and words are intimately tied to culture that the computer s transformation of communication means a transformation a revolutionizing of culture moving from a vague sense that writing is profoundly different with different material and technological tools to an understanding of how such tools can and will change writing writers written forms and writing s functions is not a simple matter further the question of whether and how changes in individual writers experiences with new technologies translate into large scale cultural revolutions remains unresolved this book is about the relationship of writing to its technologies it uses history theory and empirical research to argue that the effects of computer technologies on literacy are complex always incomplete and far from unitary despite a great deal of popular and even scholarly discourse about the inevitability of the computer revolution the author argues that just as computers impact on discourse discourse itself impacts technology and explains how technology is used in educational settings and beyond
